First I’d like to talk about an overview and current topics of computer vision. Second, introduce our recent study on computer vision, such as textbook page recognition for self-study in distance learning and pedestrian detection.